Description (min. 100 words, include objective, outcome, etc.)	Aurora's PG College (MCA) in association with YBI Foundation conducted a Training Program on Django from April 15, 2024, to April 26, 2024, aimed at equipping students with practical skills in one of the most popular web frameworks for Python. The program was designed to provide a thorough introduction to Django, focusing on both fundamental and advanced concepts of web development. The training began with an introduction to Django's architecture and its advantages for building web applications. Participants were introduced to the MVC (Model-View-Controller) pattern, Django's ORM (Object-Relational Mapping). The curriculum included detailed sessions on setting up a Django environment, creating and managing projects, and developing applications. Key topics covered included URL routing, views, templates, and forms. Students engaged in hands-on exercises to create and customize Django models, implement user authentication, and develop CRUD (Create, Read, Update, Delete) functionalities. Guest lectures from experienced Django developers provided valuable industry insights, discussing best practices, real-world applications, and career opportunities in web development. These sessions helped students understand the practical implications of their learning and the evolving trends in web technologies. Participant feedback highlighted the program's effectiveness in enhancing their web development skills and providing a strong foundation in Django. The training successfully prepared students for further specialization in web development and potential career opportunities in the tech industry.
